The Man Is the Issue

THE CENTRAL ISSUE OF THE United States election campaign as it stands at this point, is not the dispute between two party platforms differing little in funda-The issue is Mr. Nixon versus Senator Kennedy.

Certainly a great issue of principle could develop before the cam-paign is finished but it has not developed yet.

The draughtsmen of Los Angeles and Chicago may say that their platforms stand far apart, irreconcilable in policy. In foreign eyes and, we suspect, in American eyes as well, the distance between them is narrow. Mr. Nixon's shift toward liberalism-in the realm of social services, for example, in finance and in civil rights for Negroes—has made the quarrel of ideology almost fictitious.

There remains, however, a vital question for the electors to decide: Which of the candidates would make the better president? For obvious reasons that decision is more vital today than in any modern election.

The American presidency, quite distinct in its whole concept from the British system of cabinet gov-ernment and collective responsibility, vests huge and almost frightening power in one man. That power has been steadily growing in modern times and in the present state of world crisis it is literally the power of war or peace.

While only the Congress can declare war, the president, as commander-in-chief and sole architecture. of foreign policy, can make war inevitable. During the next four critical years the personality, intelli-gence and judgment of the American president must be among the ost important facts in the world.

If the election is to be mainly a contest of men rather than policies it will be like many elections of the past.

The modern era was opened by the impact of Franklin Roosevelt's personality, for in 1932 his apparent views differed little in fundamentals from those of Mr. Hoover. Having attacked the Republican Government for spending too much and promised to balance the budget with drastic economy, Roosevelt revealed. or discovered, an opposite policy only after he had been elected, Again in 1952 it was the personality of Mr. Eisenhower, certainly not his policies, that won the elec-tion and repeated his victory four years later, the Democratic Party meanwhile capturing the Congress.

Throughout American history the man has often counted for than the policy and so he is likely to count in November.

The contest of two young and ardent men is likely to prove peculiarly vigorous. Mr. Nixon, a cold realist, says the election will be the closest of this century-a warning designed to galvanize his party for action. Senator Kennedy, though publicly confident of victory, is taking nothing for granted, as his unlikely partnership with Senator Johnson plainly indicates, a partnership which The New York Times calls "cynical schizophrenia."

The race will be unusually long, starting as soon as the Congress re convenes a few days hence and both parties seek to lay down a popular legislative record. By the nature of the two candidates and the current national and international situation, the election also will be strenuous, probably bitter and perhaps, as Mr. Nixon expects, close. And by the nature of the American system there will be a pause in policy-making, a postponement of great decisions—if these tumultuous times permit—until the people have chosen between two remarkable can-

Those Low Interest Bonds

MR. BENNETT HAS CARRIED to Ottawa the request of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities for low interest loans. He thinks such loans could be made available at 2 or 3 per cent.

According to The Canadian Press report, the interest should be set at whatever the Federal Government would have to pay to raise the money, less the amount the Government gets back in taxes from bond-

The Federal Government has no money put by in a sock. It is, in fact, running in deficit. Any money it made available to municipalities the Government would first have to Currently it is borrowing money at about 5 per cent. If it turned around and gave the municipalities 3 per cent loans it would obviously per cent.

Mr. Bennett implies that the bondholders would be taxed to pro-vide the extra—or the Government would forego for its own purposes what the bondholders are paying in

This may make sense to Mr. Bennett. On its face, it makes none to the public.

Of course the municipalities want low interest loans. With them they could undertake all manner of desirable projects. They could build the schools on which they were told the schools of the s to go slow earlier this year. They could presumably hasten hospital construction.

To the municipalities there are projects of high merit. So are 2 or 3 per cent loans. But if Ottawa has to borrow at or near 5 per cent to provide them, they can be made MR. DIEFENBAKER'S task, then, is simple after all. He must merely available to junior governments at the lower rate only through subsidy.

There is nothing nebulous about who would provide the subsidy. It would be the Canadian taxpayers. They could pay the difference directly or they could take up the slack if particular bondholders' covernment itself are the last things of the municipal covernment itself are the last things. taxes were channeled to the muni-cipal loans with corresponding loss to the Federal treasury.

Iran Recognizes Israel

W formal diplomatic recognition to Israel the other day, close students of the two countries' affairs were not surprised. They had been meeting in the moonlight. Now they are holding hands in public.

Without publicity - and occasionally with strategic denials of the arrangement-Iran has been selling oil to the constantly expanding Israeli pipeline system. Israel, more-over, maintains a small 'Point Four" mission in Iran. Israel flies regular service on El Al Airlines from Tel Aviv to Teheran, via Turkey. And Iran leans heavily on the

WHEN IRAN EXTENDED Israeli intelligence service to keep it informed, particularly on Arab intentions in two of Iran's oil-rich provinces.

Official recognition for Israel has, however, caused some conster-nation among the Arabs. Iran, as a Moslem nation, has professed per-tain Islamic solidarity. That soli-darity has not been able to avoid Israeli penetration. On the basis of Teheran's move, the Arabs must recognize that their opopsition to Israel their intent, as some have points on the Gallup poll put it, to destroy the national home of the Jews in of the Jews—is not unanimous among the Moslem Middle East

Government by Gesture

As a loyal and candid friend, The A Ottawa Journal tells Mr. Diefen-baker how to cure the trouble revealed by certain provincial elections and the horrid figures of the Gal-lup poll. In offering this advice The Journal consciously an-alyzes Mr. Diefenbak-er's trouble and, quite unconsciously, in a i-self into another process altogether.

Thus The Journal writes with admiration about the "reasonably good administration, plus a dynamic, unique leader" which are the Government's chief assets, but somehow doubts that

WHAT else does it require? It requires, says The Journal, "strong party captains" at the grass roots, "a sustained campaign of political education" and "continuous organization at the constituency level," since the Government has failed in "telling its story" to the poorle

In short, all the Government needs In short, all the Government needs is a better system of public relations. This will strike the distant observer as odd. He had assumed that the Government's public relations were perfectly organized not only as a science but as a new ast form and almost a second ost a sacra nient. Anyway, in all this half column of earnest counsel The Journal never mentions an aspect of Government which was considered rather important in less sophisticated times. It never mentions Government policy.

Mr. Diere after all. He must merely provide reasonably good administration, educate the people and tell his bedtime story. That will fix everything, even the next election. But, lacking policy,

UNDER this theory of the political process—by no means peculiar to Canada but currently at its quadrennial climax in the United States—Government is not expected to make decisions; it makes gestures. It does not tell the people what it interds to do; it tells them a bedtime story. Acting but not action is the new principle of politics.

SUCH an antique idea will hardly appeal to the modern mind of The Journal but some old-fashioned Canadians may suspect that the small item of policy, lost among the scenery and stage props, is vaguely connected with the loss of percentage points on the poll. Despite all its recent improvements, politics still has something to do with Sounded Like Statesman Government. The actual state on nation, as distinguished from the The actual state of the time story, does affect the less imagina-tive voters. Many of them, alas, are not much interested in education by Government but would rather hear what Government is doing, not what it is say As between bread and circuse it prefers bread.

WHAT we are seeing in Ottawa to day is not the failure of the entertainment industry, which is flourishing, but the failure of Government to make up its mind instead of its face before the television cameras. For three years our statesmen have been search ing for a policy like characters in search of an author, and yet we are told that

Study of Man

The problems of a troubled and hitherto misunderstood group of human beings, known as "adults," will be the subject of an intensive survey by a group of University of Toronto sociologists.

Almost all sociological teams have concentrated entirely on teen-agers, dur-ing the past 20 years, says Dr. Raphael Grebe, prominent adult expert.
"Undoubtedly one of the reasons why adults feel misunderstood is that they tend to be regarded as a 'special' group," Dr. Grebe explains. "This is especially true of crime stories in the newspapers which tend to feature adults:

what is the great need of the adult meration? Social scientists believe at love, discipline and understanding the list, but the lack of life is the simplest and the best. generation? that love, discipline and understanding come high on the list, but the lack of specific studies leaves the area clouded.

Are adults living wholesomely?
Is there communication between them?
Why do they wear distinctive cloth-

Why do they wear distinctive clouding and take up certain "fads" such as golf, bridge, politics, etc.?

Do they co-relate to the world in which they live?

And if so, what for?

These are some of the questions that

Grebe and his associates hope to

"What adults really want," Dr. Grebe continued, "if preliminary questions posed to typical adults in taverns, at ball games, and on street corners, are any indication—is to be left the hell alone, as they put it in their quaint Unfortunately that is something we

You might have played your way to exhaustion on the clay tennis court a former operator had built 100 yards away, craving a drink and gulping it as you sat on the plank bench outside.

You rested and you examined the names Cliffside summer kids had scratched on the signs advertising soft drinks and tobacco. There you saw the brief evidence of young summer romance, a formal heart enclosing

You looked in later years and wondered where the youngsters had gone—some to the army, some to the navy, some to the air force, some never to return to Cliffside where life had been good. You tried to recollect what had happened to the girls, recalling a num-ber now matrons—far removed from the skinny, brown-legged and freckled playmates of a simpler Shawnigan era.

that had carried them along the Irall, down the road to the store.

You remembered directions given to friends who were to motor up for a day's visit. "Just keep on the Cutoff until you come to the lake, then follow it. If you go too far you'll see the Cliffside store, a little green building on the left. Back about 200 yards our road cuts in."

And behind this question lies still another—who will lead the new party?

The Regina convention will have an important bearing on the answer for it's generally conceded that the CCF leader will have a tremendous edge over anyone seeking the new party leadership at the founding convention next year.

"Take a look at Aparicio.
He has all the answers. When Marty Marion was called Mr. Shortstop, he was asked to name all the things the man at this most im-

Little Scooter said feels the same about Appar-eachee-oh, the five foot explicition, 155-pound Venezuelan son of a shortstop who started fearning his trade at 10. And Stengel, the multimillionaire manager, would pay to keep him out of Yankee Stadium and Comiskey Park, when the New York club is in Chicago.

Nellie Fox, who has played alongside the 26-year-old Aparicio since he came up, is a good one to ask about him. "Just say that Aparicio is a tremendous shortstop," said the tobacco-chewing Foxie, a prototype of the old-fashioned ballplayer who choked the bat and poked the ball to all fields. "He does everything a little better than any other shortstop I have seen."

Would Fox compare Aparicio with other shortstops with whom he has teamed?

"I played with only four others," replied the hustling second baseman, "Eddie Joost was quite a shortstop with the Athletics in 1949, but Aparicio has much wider range. Luke Appling was playing the hitters when I moved to. Chicago. Willie Miranda was an outstanding fielder, but he had trouble with ground balls hit straight at him. Aparicio thrives on those kind like he does on all the rest. Chico Carrasquel was a whiz, but he coudn't charge in on a ground ball and get it to second base to start a double play like Aparicio."

The most extraordinary thing about Aparicio, who easily could be mistaken for the bat boy but for the name and number on his back, is the speed with which he gets the ball away from any position. It is entire lack of lost motion that beats the runner to the bag.

With as fine and accurate shortstopping arm as old-timers can recall. Aparicio goes into the hole back of the third baseman, wheels and throws with the same motion. He comes in on a slow roller and without straightening up

Prince's Award for Canadian Boys

Prince Philip again has eng tered the Canadian physical fitness scene, with approval of a special award for Canadian youngsters with an extra touch of adventure.

The prince's participation was disclosed Monday by Harcourt Roy, president of the Central Fitness Council of British Columbia, which is in the process of becoming incorporated as the National Fitness Council of Canada.

The council was given per-mission to introduce in Canada Duke of Edinburgh's Award." described as a ness, public service and leadership scheme for boys 14 to 18 years old."

One of the conditions laid down for the awards by Sir John Hunt, secretary of the scheme in Britain and former partner to Sir Edmund Hillary in the Everest climbing expedi-tion, is that the plan be oper-ated experimentally on a small scale for now.

Harcourt Roy has the ideal set up for it. As physical edu-cation instructor in North Van-couver High School, he said Monday night, he has 400 boys

The scheme has already gained wide acceptance in Britain, where it was introduced some four years ago. The awards are handsomely embossed and carry Prince Philip's royal insignia.

Mr. Roy said the awards are regarded there as a testimonial to the character of the youths who gain them. If carried by a youth seeking a job, they would show that he is "decidedly a cut above the average."

Today marks the beginning of my vacation and priding myself on being a fairly methodical person, my sulfcases are all ready to slip into the back of the station wagon. Must confess, though, if past years are any guide, I'll probably end up foraging through them at least two or three times before I'm perfectly satisfied that everything's "according to Hoyle."

Being a sun lover, I'm off with my family to the sunny Okanagan and while there we intend to take in Ogopogo's annual water festivities at Kelowna. Wonder if I'll make the front page with a genuine picture of that elusive sea serpent! The comment, made during the course of a brief speech at celebrations honoring eight years in power for the Social Credit party, was the closest the premier has come publicly in stating an election would be held in 1960. Most political writers say the announcement will be made Wednesday when Premier Bennett returns to his Kelowna home to be renominated for the South Okanagan riding. A fail election is likely if the announcement is made there.

The premier told more than 200 guests at the annu-

The premier told more than 200 guests at the anniversary celebrations that "many pertinent questions" would be answered at Kelowna.

The premier and Mrs. Bennett cut a huge cake with eight candles on it, to complete the celebrations here.

Mayor Raps City Tie-In With Hockey

Council Fight Looms

A Memorial Arena Commission proposal to go into partnership with Victoria Cougars owner James Pig-gott is expected to touch off a battle in city council that may well decide whether or not the professional hockey team stays here. (See also Page 6).

A division of opinion broke out this morning, only hours after the commission orally agreed to the business arrangement with the wealthy Saska Cougar franchise.

"I'm opposed to the principle of the city going into the hockey business," Mayor Percy Scurrah said today.

DOWELL BACKS PLAN

But Ald. Arthur Dowell, who doubles as acting mayor, supported the proposal as the "only thing we can do to keep the arena going."

Under the proposed arrangement, Mr. Piggot would supply the team, the commission would do the administration and promotion and the two parties would split what was left over after expenses.

"I like hockey and I go to the sames whenever I can but

An early report apparently cleared the car from any direct contact with the bicycle, which bore only paint scratches and had a flat front tire.

Both trucks were seized because police were told one of the drivers had driven each within a few minutes, just before the accident. One was found at an Esquimalt fuel yard, the other parked on Rose

The oral arrangement proposed as a compromise to Mr. Piggott is this: salaries and travelling allowances of the team will be the first charge on gross gate receipts; an 11 per cent payment to the commission in lieu of rental will be the second charge; after that the commission and Mr. Piggott split the profit, if any.

would have program sales to help it with this.

A City Hall official said one of the benefits to the city from the arrangement is the guarantee by Mr. Piggott, who controls a large number of hockey players, that he will supply a team that will win third place at the worst in the Western Hockey League.

DOG LOVERS THREATEN SCOTLAND YARD CHIEF

LONDON (AP)-The outraged chairman of Britain's Canine Defence League threatened today to have Scotland Yard commissioner Sir Joseph Simpson jailed under a 93-year-old law.

Simpson's office last week ordered policemen to stop wasting time seeking out new homes for the dogs, cats and other domestic pets of people they send to prison.

Jailed pet owners, said the order, must make their own arrangements. Police were told to see that any deserted pets were destroyed.

Up went cries of protest—as always happens in Britain whenever the animal kingdom seems menaced.

The Canine Defence League chairman,

VOTE DETAILS ON WEDNESDAY?

VANCOUVER (CP)-Premier Bennett of B.C. told a Social Credit anniversary party here Monday

"Pretty soon we're going to have the opportunity to to make our record 12 years. Sooner than some people think we may ask for a new mandate."

The comment, made during the course of a brief speech at celebrations honoring eight years in power for the Social Credit party, was the closest the premier has come publicly in stating an election would be held in 1960.

Most political writers say the announcement will be made Wednesday when Premier Bennett returns to his Kelowna home to be renominated for the South Okanagan riding. A fall election is likely if the announcement is made there.

The premier told more than 200 guests at the anniversary celebrations that "many pertinent questions" would be answered at Kelowna.

Mayor Opposes Tie-In of City

By JOHN MIKA

A Memorial Arena Commission proposal to go into partnership with Victoria Cougars' owner James Piggott is expected to touch off a battle in city council that may well decide whether or not the professional hockey team stays here. (See also Page 6.)

A division of opinion broke out this morning, only hours after the commission orally supported the proposal as the agreed to the business arrange—ment with the wealthy Saskatoon contractor who owns the Courser franchise.

"But it does show there are problems," he conceded.

(Huge sums of tax mones) were siphoned off to support the world's amateur champions without the knowledge of Belleville ratepayers until unpaid bills began arriving at about it.

"But, if we go into hockey, why shouldn't we go into professional baseball or lacrosse? It just seem to me that isn't a civie function—not when you're dealing with public money."

The mayor emphasized that he did not think the fiasco

LUCKY TO BE ALIVE' WRITES U-2 PILOT

NEW YORK (AP)... The people here tell me that I am lucky to be alive but only time will tell me whether or not I was lucky." Francis Gary Powers penned these words to his wife May 26 as he sat in a Moscow prison cell. They were the first received by Mrs. Powers after her husband was shot down while flying a U-2 reconnaissance plane over Russia

Since then she has received two others, dated June 28 and July 19. Among other things, Powers reported he was permitted to smoke, take walks, sunbathe and read. He said he was getting "more than enough to eat."

The flier is to be tried by Russia on espionage charges, beginning Aug 17.

Excerpts from his letter were made public this week.

All the communications bore the postmark of Lubyanka Prison in Moscow.
